Romanian Leader Promises Protection

New York (JTA) — Romanian Jews can count on their government to protect them from rising manifestations of anti-Semitism, President Ion Iliescu has assured Chief Rabbi Moses Rosen.

Rabbi Rosen, who has been threatened personally, was received by Mr. Iliescu to discuss the worsening situation, according to the World Jewish Congress, which received a report on the meeting last week from Bucharest.

The chief rabbi asked bluntly whether the country's remaining 18,000 Jews could hope to continue their lives in Romania, where about 800,000 Jews lived before World War II.

Jewish fears peaked last month when the Romanian Parliament officially honored the memory of pro-Nazi dictator Ion Antonescu on the 45th anniversary of his execution for war crimes, which included the deportation of at least 250,000 Jews to Nazi death camps.

The presumably democratically elected body which replaced Nicolae Ceausescu's Communist dictatorship rose for a minute of silence in memory of Antonescu on May 1.

Anti-Semitism is endemic to Romania, and its latest manifestations seem to have permeated all levels of society.

Observers attribute its resurgence to nationalism and xenophobia.
